As a Licensed Psychologist in private practice, I have obtained post doctoral training in forensic psychology and spend approximately 50 percent of my time involved in forensic evaluations and services. The areas of my forensic practice include: family law matters, criminal and juvenile cases involving sexual misconduct, civil suits involving claims of pain and suffering and emotional distress, and the evaluation of plaintiffs and defendants alleging sexual harassment, as well as gender and age discrimination.. I additionally have conducted evaluations for school districts involving teacher and administrative misconduct.

The other portion of my practice is devoted to providing therapy to children and adults. Therapeutically, I specialize in working with individuals and families who have experienced sexual, emotional, and physical abuse; adults and children involved in divorce; and long term therapy with adults who are attempting to overcome self-defeating patterns that have interfered with their functioning in their relationships or employment.

In addition to providing consultation to groups of professionals working in the above area, I have presented numerous workshops on these topics for professional organizations in Minnesota as well as presented to a variety of national conferences on related issues.

11/80 – 1/83 Psychologist
Michael J. Shea and Associates
1219 Marquette Avenue
Minneapolis, MN 55403
Supervisor: Michael Shea, Ph.D.

As a full-time psychologist, I performed forensic and therapeutic services within the context of this private practice. I conducted therapy with children, adolescents, families, and adult women. A large part of my practice included working with victims of incest and their families. Consequently, I was often called to testify as an expert witness in such matters and conducted numerous custody evaluations, as well as psychological evaluations to address more generalized mental health problems associated with the populations described. I also participated in bi-weekly, multi-disciplinary staff meetings while at Shea Clinic, in addition to receiving weekly supervision from Michael Shea, Ph.D.

1/79 – 1/81 Psychologist
Washington County Human Services
Woodbury, MN
Supervisor: Miriam Shark, Ph.D.

As a part-time counseling psychologist working approximately ten hours per week, I had the opportunity to conduct therapy with children, adolescents, families and adults. As an outgrowth of co-leading a group for women who had been victims of incest, children who had been victims of incest were frequently referred to me for evaluation and therapy. I frequently worked with the resident psychiatrist and other psychologists on staff, as a co-therapist, and participated in staff meetings.

9/79 – 11/80 Psychologist
School District 834
Stillwater, MN

Hired by the school system to act as a consultant for a self-contained program for the emotionally disturbed, my responsibilities included conducting extensive psychological assessments of perspective students and assisting the classroom teacher in planning educational and behavioral interventions for such students. Additionally, I held weekly groups with the children in this program and conducted parenting classes.

6/77 Johnson Institute
Minneapolis, MN

During my attendance at this three-week seminar on chemical dependency counseling, I was instructed in the disease process and spent a week's internship in the St. Mary's Chemical Dependency Treatment Program for Adolescents. While at St. Mary's, I worked in the areas of detoxification, treatment, and aftercare.

1975 – 1978 School Psychologist
Anoka Hennepin School System
Anoka, MN

During my tenure as a school psychologist, I conducted evaluations of students K-12 regarding academic, behavioral, and emotional concerns. I was instrumental in developing a special program for behavioral disordered students and offered consultation to the staff regarding special populations such as the hearing impaired, mentally retarded, and behavioral disordered students.

6/17 – 8/75 Intern
General Hospital
Child-Adolescent Unit
Minneapolis, MN
Supervisor: Ada Hegion, Ph.D.

While participating in this internship experience, specific training included administration and interpretation of objective and projective personality testing as well as assisting in child, family, and group therapy.

9/74 – 5/75 School Psychology Intern
Edina Public Schools
Edina, MN
Supervisor: Harry Leviton, Ph.D.

During my year under Dr. Leviton's supervision, I engaged in intellectual, personality, and behavioral evaluation assignments, as well as in short-term therapy with students and families. I frequently acted as a consultant to Special Education teachers and classroom teachers in the area of program development. I also participated in a committee to evaluate the district-wide program of special education.

FORENSIC EXPERIENCE:

I have been in private practice in Minneapolis, Minnesota for the past 28 years. During this time, in addition to my clinical practice where I treat children and adults, I have also been involved in the practice of Forensic Psychology.

I presently spend approximately fifty percent of my time in forensic evaluations and services. As a part of this work, I have completed approximately 1,600 forensic evaluations. In total, I have testified as an expert witness approximately 400 times over the past twenty five years, in a variety of court settings in the State of Minnesota as well as nationally. I have been hired by both the Defense and Plaintiff in addition to being frequently appointed as a neutral examiner by the court. Additionally, I am one of a few psychologists who have been identified by the Hennepin County Family Court as a recommended neutral expert.

The psychological assessments and expert testimony I have provided include the following areas and issues in Forensic Psychology:

Civil Suits Involving Claims of Pain and Suffering, and Emotional Distress: I conduct evaluations of adults and children in civil suits where pain and suffering and emotional distress is alleged. I have evaluated litigants involved in car accidents; litigants injured by physical and sexual assault; employment related cases, including claims of discrimination; and alleged emotional trauma related to a wide variety of other physical injuries. I am regarded as an expert in the area of Post Traumatic Stress Disorder; consequently, I have conducted evaluations in cases involving sexual assault by the clergy as well as in suits where abuse has occurred in the context of institutional settings such as schools and hospitals.

Sexual Harassment, Gender Discrimination and Age Discrimination: I perform independent psychological evaluations of individuals who allegedly have experienced work place sexual harassment, gender discrimination, or age discrimination.
